Heavy Rains Flood Roads, Basements; Rescue Family From Marooned Home

The Easter Sunday cloud burst which caused so many wash outs was the cause of one near serious accident Monday, on the road going past Charley Lauffer and Herbert Coopers. Mr. A. R. Wakeland and Clarence Cutler who had been wiring the house of Mr. Chas. Lauffer, were on their way to complete the wiring. There was a deep wash out a few rods east of Mr. Coopers house which the occupants of the car did not see until it was too late to stop, with the result that the car crashed into the wash out. Mr. Cutler was not injured but Mr. Wakeland sustained a cut on his forehead and right hand which required the attention of a physician. The car was rather seriously damaged.

A veritable cloudburst struck a large section of Will County Sunday night. Hickory Creek overflowed its banks at New Lenox. John Van Ginkle, his wife and baby were rescued at 3 o'clock Monday morning from their home on the banks of Hickory Creek in Brookwood Park, at New Lenox, after the rising waters had completely surrounded the dwelling.

Water rose hip-deep around the Van Ginkle home, marooning the family. Neighbors saw their plight and went to the rescue, aiding in carrying Mrs. Van Ginkle and her baby to high ground.

Creeks in the vicinity of New Lenox were converted into raging torrents by the heavy rain. The Marley Road was under water while the North road was also submerged in spots.

On account of the rain of Sunday March 31, many of the Midlothians were "flood bound". Most of the people who work in the city could not reach the station to make their trains. One man, braver than the rest, tried it, but could not make it, because the current was too strong, and came above his knees. On the paved road in the center of the town, the water stood three fourths of the way up on the wheels of all the cars that were parked along the pavement. It will take some time for all the water to drain off.

The Elmore subdivision south of Tinley Park was quite badly flooded by the heavy rain Sunday night, a number of bungalows and chicken houses being surrounded by water.

JOHN C. URCH FOUND DEAD IN NEW LENOX

Residents of New Lenox were deeply grieved and surprised over the tragic death of John C. Urch, former Justice of the Peace and a resident of New Lenox for 67 years.

Mr. Urch was always in good health and was last seen alive a week ago last Saturday at a dance in his hall known as the Grange Hall. About 11:30 o'clock he went home and was not seen again until his lifeless body was discovered by the children of his nephew, Clarence Urch on Thursday morning about ten o'clock.

The children were roller skating by the Urch home and looking in the bedroom window saw the body of Mr. Urch lying in bed. They hastened home and told their mother, Deputy Sheriff A. Walsh was notified and he in turn notified Deputy Coroner Harold Kirchner of Joliet. When they entered the home they found Mr. Urch lying face down in bed. The bed clothes had not been disarranged so it is thought Mr. Urch must have suffered a sudden heart attack or stroke of apoplexy either late Saturday night or Sunday morning and died suddenly.

The body was removed to the Chamberlain undertaking rooms at Joliet and sealed in a copper lined casket.

Funeral services were held Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the Grace Episcopal church at New Lenox with the Rev. Mr. Applegate of Hobart, Indiana officiating. The latter has been a close friend of Mr. Urch for over 48 years and Mr. Urch had been a guest in his home only a few weeks prior to his tragic death. Burial was in Maplewood cemetery at New Lenox.

Mr. Urch has been living alone since the death of his wife in 1925. A niece, Miss Merilla Fellows, Chicago, visited him a week ago Saturday. He was in the habit of accompanying her home and when neighbors and relatives did not see him after Saturday, they concluded that he had made one of his trips to Chicago.

Mr. Urch at one time was employed on the Rock Island milk train running from Joliet to Chicago and retired from active service many years ago and has since then been residing continuously in New Lenox. He built and purchased several residences in that village.

Mr. Urch was born in Portsmouth, N. H., March 5, 1857 and came to New Lenox with his parents when 5 years old. His father conducted a rattan furniture factory in New Lenox and he worked there until after he was married. He married Miss Carrie Lewis, daughter of Prof. Leslie Lewis, widely known Chicago school instructor. Mrs. Urch passed away in January 1925.

Mr. Urch is survived by two brothers, Henry H., of New Lenox, George, Coloma, Michigan and four nephews and two nieces. One of the nephews is Sheriff Leslie L. Urch of Kane County.

The deceased was a kindly man, a public spirited citizen always interested in the progress of his community. He was much interested in getting electricity for the village, was interested in the old interurban line and later in the New Lenox State Bank. When the News-Bulletin was founded in 1919 he was one of the first subscribers and has been on this paper's subscription list up to the time of his death.

The Town Doctor

SAYS

If ever there was a time when it behooved small cities and towns to prepare for a big opportunity, it is right now.

Big men, big industry and big town people are looking to the smaller cities as they have never looked before.

You may call it a trend of the times if you like, but whatever you call it, it is one grand opportunity for it. Leading publications everywhere are printing special articles on it and it is more and more a subject of conversation wherever big men get together publicly or in private conference.

In a recent issue of The American Magazine, Henry Ford said: "Is it efficient for business to pay high land prices and high taxes in congested cities where their workers must pay exorbitant rents? By moving out, business could get lower land prices, lower taxes and lower rents and far better living conditions for its people."

A Bulletin recently issued by the American Highway Educational Bureau says: "Dependable all-weather transportation has already begun to work wonders in the decentralization of manufacturing, with the result that more diversified forms of employment are being brought to the country." This development, like many changes in these whirligig days, has been going on so quietly and steadily as to pass almost unnoticed. It has come to be a common remark among motorists upon entering an unfamiliar town to ask, "What do they make here?" It is no longer enough to say that it is an agricultural town or an educational center, for surely they must be making some product or another which the world at large uses. "It is often said and with some degree of truth, the bulletin admits that the drift of population from farm to city remains unchecked, but the facts are that this drift is stopping short of the larger cities and has begun to build up the towns and villages that lie so close to and form such an integral part of the open country."

Dear Friends and Voters:

I have decided to enter the race in the election on April 16th for the office of President of Board of Trustees of the Village of Orland Park, Illinois on a petition as an Independent Party.

Since I have entered the race I have been subjected to a lot of unwarranted criticism regarding my books I am in charge of as Village Clerk. I am ready at all times to answer all questions pertaining to the business transactions and financial standing of the Village of Orland Park.

I further wish to state that I was born in this village and as a citizen and business man have always taken interest in the progressive way and will be at all times for your interest and the community if I am elected.

I will assure you that if I am elected to this office I will fulfill my duties to the best of my ability in which you have placed your confidence. I am earnestly seeking your co-operation and support on Tuesday, April 16th and will appreciate your vote.

Yours respectfully,

Philip E. Steffen

Mokena Newslets

When workmen took the blackboards out of the old school house last week they found a list of names. The names comprised of members of the school board and the carpenter and the teachers of the year 1902. The names had been written the 21st of September of that year.

Members of the school board were C. Bechstein, S. Hohenstein and Irwin McGovney. The carpenters were Charles Maue and J. Bigger. The teachers that year were W. J. Cunningham and Leah Smith. All of the writing was in an excellent state of preservation for its twenty-seven years. It is not to be erased.

Last Monday two Mokena boys went fishing. They are somebody and another person. The fish were biting the bait off their hooks as fast as they were thrown in. At last there was a sudden jerk down, followed by one up, and Mr. Fish was lifted out of the water. Another and another followed until the boys had more than they could carry home, so they called on Mr. Hentsch to come and haul them in.

If you read this you bite too.

Proposed Mokena Street Paving and Sewer Projects Will Cost $67,000.00

According to tentative figures submitted at a meeting of the Mokena Local Board of Improvements by Mr. Cather of the village engineering firm of Kelker-DeLoewe of Chicago, Wednesday evening, the grand total cost for paving Front street and laying a storm water sewer would be $67,000.00 which cost would have to be paid by special assessments spread over a ten year period. The paving plan would call for paving Front street from the old school house corner in the east end of the village to Wolf Road. The block from Wolf Road east to Mokena street in front of the Kolber store would be 41 feet wide with curbing and would cost about $1000 per 100 feet frontage. The next

PETER STARMAN DROPS DEAD

Peter Starman, aged 56 years, brother of Mrs. Catherine Batson of New Lenox, dropped dead of heart trouble while walking along a street in Joliet Saturday night. Funeral services were held Tuesday morning at ten o'clock from the residence of Mrs. Amelia Bruggemann in Joliet to the First Lutheran church where Rev. John A. Goeken had charge of the service. Burial was in Libertyville cemetery.

Mr. Starman is survived by two daughters, Mildred and Helen of Chicago, two sisters, Mrs. Catherine Batson of New Lenox and Mrs. Amelia Bruggemann of Joliet.

Opening Dance At Mokena May 14

The re-organized Mokena Men's Club is preparing to open the dance season with the first dance scheduled for Saturday evening, May 11th in their pavilion in the Cappel Grove south of Mokena. It is probable that dances will be held every Saturday night.

Water from septic tanks would also be drained thru the storm water sewer, but if the water should give off an offensive odor at the outlet a treating plant would be required which would cost about $25,000.

The entire matter is up to the property owners of the Front street to say whether the board should go ahead with these improvements. If property owners owning 50 per cent of the total frontage on Front street should petition the board to proceed with the work, it would have to be done.

All property lying south of the Rock Island tracks would not come in for these improvements or assessments. As all this property drains southward toward Hickory Creek, a separate drainage outlet would be required. As there is not enough property in the village limits on the south side on which to levy special assessments to cover the cost of such an improvement, it appears that the formation of a drainage district to take in property adjoining the village, would be the only solution for the south side.

Another special meeting will be held next Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock to take up the matter further.

Rural Schools Needs

Must Be Considered

Rural schools in the farm lands, and district schools in some of the so-called urban areas, exist under a system inaugurated in 1789. The hundred and forty years of practice has established a precedent which proves difficult to alter. But to obtain better schools the existing order of control must be either entirely abolished or radically changed, says Alston Secor, editor of Successful Farming.

"Why should a mistake of 1789 be made perpetual?" he asks. "Just because we have grown up with this system does not make it right. Why, then, did not the colonists go back to the centralized school system? The same answer holds true now what did then: it is easier to create political offices than to abolish them. The politicians of 150 years ago were as anxious to hold their little school jobs as the politicians of today are anxious to hold their jobs.

"Consolidation," writes Mr. Secor, "is not essential, however. It may not be economical or desirable. But state aid for the weak schools will put them on a parity with the better schools. This must come. Our school units are too small. The county unit is small enough. But any change that will equalize the opportunities should be made and made quickly. Because farmers can get aroused about equality for agriculture and make a tremendous political fight for that, they should be right in line for equality in rural education."

Home Owners Helped in Modernizing House

There is no doubt that the home modernizing movement will bring about in the near future a class of service from legitimate sources which will enable home owners desirous of remodeling to secure funds on time payment for the purpose.

At the present time savings banks, building and loan associations, life insurance companies, trust companies and mortgage companies are evincing a real interest in the financing of remodeling programs.

Not long ago there started a movement which has been nationally recognized as of extreme importance; the organization of the home modernizing bureau of the national building industries.

An organization this, not only to assist home ownership, but to encourage and make possible home betterment.

At present financing of homes and home improvements is being carried on effectively. And all signs show that this effectiveness will be even more marked in the near future.

Landscape Improvement

St. Louis county is engaged in one of the most ambitious road-paving campaigns ever launched by a single county in the United States. Already 105 miles of new roadways have been completed with 27 miles remaining to be built. A total of 132 miles is anticipated by the county engineer as a result of a bond issue of $3,000,000.

Now that the county is to be belted with concrete highways, it is opportune that those in authority should embroider these new thoroughfares with shade trees, ornamental shrubbery and flowers, preferably using those native to Missouri. How charming the landscape if unsightly wayside signs and ragged fields could be displaced with stately sycamores and maples, hedges of alder, buckhorn, native currants, sumac or climbing roses!—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Proper Care of Lawns

Rolling is necessary to keep the lawn in a desired condition, but damage often can be done if the work is not done at the right time or in the right way.

It is important that rolling never be attempted when the soil is in a soggy condition; that is, rolling should be done when there is no excess of moisture in the soil. This is especially true in the case of heavy soils.

The weight of the roller to be used and the amount of rolling required depends upon the type of soil. Light or sandy soil requires and will bear more rolling and the use of heavier rollers than will heavy soils. On an average a roller should weigh from 175 to 225 pounds.

Record to Be Proud Of.

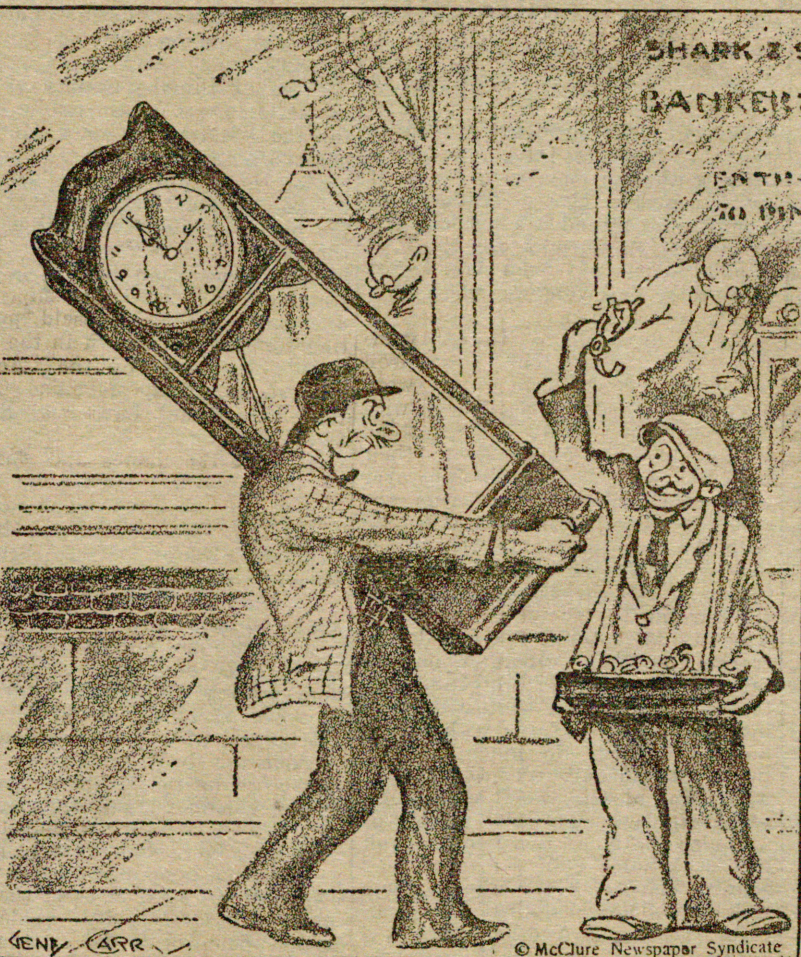

South Windsor, Mich., has more than 37 miles of paved streets, 35 miles of water mains, 27 miles of sidewalk, 40 miles of sewers, 10 miles of gas mains, 15 miles of telephone lines and 12 miles of electric power lines. This is the record of a community scarce three years removed from the pioneer stage of cow pastures, plowed fields, and barbed-wire fences.

Team Work Builds City

The way to build up a community is with community spirit, co-operation team-work. The local manufacturer, the home producer of any community of general use, should be given preference. Each industry should give consideration to the other in the same community. Consumers can force this condition if the matter is given proper support.—Portland Oregonian

Why We Do What We Do

By M. K. THOMSON, Ph. D.

WHY WE ARE CHEERFUL

THE normal healthy person is usually cheerful. Cheerfulness is the rule rather than the exception. The optimistic attitude is like a gauge. It indicates that all is well. The opposite attitude shows that there is something wrong.

We are cheerful because it is pleasant to be that way and we usually prefer the pleasant feelings and emotions to their opposites. Cheerfulness has in it the note of hope and expectancy. This is a decided asset in the struggle of life. Our chances of getting what we want and of overcoming difficulties and dangers are increased by maintaining a cheerful frame of mind.

It is because of this fact that we often pretend to be cheerful and optimistic when we are far from it. It helps us to keep up a good courage which is so essential to success.

We are also cheerful because we have discovered that it has a more favorable effect on others. No one wants to be associated with a grouchy. "Laugh and the world laughs with you; weep and you weep alone." The world places a high premium on joy, laughter and cheerfulness. Those who make others laugh are extremely popular. They are welcome everywhere.

Cheerfulness is desirable not only as a means of getting what we want, but it is also desirable in its own right as an end in itself.

Pleasure and happiness which cannot exist without a cheerful disposition are a part of life and a very important part. We live for these experiences. When we have them we seek to retain them. When we haven't them we move earth and heaven to attain them.

Sight Restored by Shock

Shock of cold water restored the sight of a man at Bordeaux, France. In 1927 he was accidentally blinded, and an operation performed upon his eyes proved unsuccessful. Recently, when he plunged his head under a cold water tap he felt sudden pains in his eyes, and then found he could see.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

MIRACLES

A READER writes the following: "I note that in giving us something to think about, you frequently refer to the Bible. I am an earnest student of the scriptures, but there is one part of them that I cannot understand and that is the miracles. I wish you would write an article about them."

The reality of the miracles has always been the first thing attacked by those who were unbelievers in the Christian religion.

Voltaire, although before he died he erected a church which bore the inscription: "Deo erexit Voltaire" ("Voltaire erected this to God"), was an unbeliever and of the miracles, he said: "A miracle is a suspension of the laws of nature; such a thing never did and never can take place."

Let us suppose that in the interior of Africa there lived a man who never having seen ice knew nothing of its character or properties. Another native who had traveled to a cold climate saw men and even horses upheld by the surface of a river.

Would not the first man receive the story of what his companion had seen with utter disbelief?

Would he not say, "What you tell me cannot be true because they would sink as soon as they stepped on the water? To remain on the surface would be a suspension of the laws of nature and so cannot be true."

The Bishop of Ripon, in a sermon preached during the war and listened to by at least one American soldier, said: "A miracle is not contrary to nature, but contrary to our conception of nature."

Two thousand years before the Christian era Sanscrit history tells of the miracles of Menu and later, of Krishna, and the religious literature of India, by far the most voluminous of all religious writings, gives thousands of incidents of "supernatural" happenings.

For nearly three centuries after the death of Christ the historians of that period have written the accounts of miracles. Tacitus and Suetonius recite them and even the raising of the dead is recorded as having resulted from the application of religious truths.

If this be so—if miracles result from the application of truth—then they are as possible in the Twentieth century as in the first.

Certain it is that there has never been a great religion from the time of Brahma and his "Institutes" down to the present which has not had its record of marvels—which is a better translation of the Greek original than "miracle." And profane as well as sacred writings have lent their support to the recordings.

But why let the question of the authenticity of the healing of the lepers or the curing of the blind or even the resuscitation of the dead interfere with the acceptance of the idea of an all-knowing, all-powerful and all-loving Creator?

Are not the springing grass, the bursting flower, the beauty of nature and the wonders of the human body and intelligence each a marvel, a miracle, past all explanation and human comprehension?

Every sunrise and every star-lit sky is a wonder a thousand times greater than all the miracles ever written down.

"The world," said Martin Luther, "is full of miracles." Few of them we understand, all of them we accept. Why quarrel or question that all things are possible to the Creator? (© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

The Birds of Life

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

IF NOT a sparrow perish
But He cares,
Then how men ought to cherish
Birds of theirs!
I do not mean the swallow
Or the wren,
But all the joys that follow
After men.

There is the bird of laughter,
Bird of love,
The birds that follow after
Birds above,
There is the robin singing
In the tree,
There is the song upspringing
In you and me.

If it is wrong to sadden
Birds that sing,
What of the thoughts that gladden
Everything?
Who meets a smile with sneering,
Love with hate,
Some day shall stand with fearing
At God's gate.

What indeed does the word "cheerfulness" imply? It means a contented spirit; it means a pure heart; it means a kind and loving disposition; it means humility and charity; it means a generous appreciation of others and a modest opinion of self.—Thackeray.

WHY use the vicious acid vinegars that are sold in the markets so freely when lemon juice is always to be obtained; an acid that is wholesome to the stomach and may be used in mayonnaise or french dressing and served with no fear of bad results? Here is a new one you may wish to try:

Orange Vinegar.

Strain the juice of six large oranges, place in a glass jar, add one dissolved cake of compressed yeast, cover with a cheese cloth and let stand in a warm place for about a month, or until sour enough to suit the taste. Serve on lettuce with mayonnaise dressing.

Raw Vegetable Salad.

Dissolve one package of lemon gelatin in a pint of boiling water, add two tablespoonsful of lemon juice, one-half teaspoonful of salt, a dash or two of cayenne and chill. Take one-half cupful each of diced beets, raw carrots, raw cabbage and celery. When the gelatin is slightly thickened add the vegetables and put into individual molds. Chill until firm. Serve on lettuce with mayonnaise dressing.

Orange Custard With Meringue.

Peel and remove all the white fiber from three sweet navel oranges. Slice very thin and arrange the slices in a glass serving dish. Cover with a boiled custard which has been prepared from two eggs, a pint of milk and one-third of a cupful of sugar. Flavor with a bit of grated orange rind and chill thoroughly before pouring over the fruit. Top with whipped cream in roses, garnish with a cube of raspberry jelly and serve.

Orange Frosting for Cake.

Take one cupful of sugar, one-third cupful of orange juice, the grated rind of an orange and put to cook until it forms a thread. Do not stir while cooking. Pour in a fine stream over the well-beaten white of an egg and beat until thick and firm enough to stay on the cake.

Bridge Croquettes.

Take two cupfuls of any well seasoned, chopped, cooked meat, mix with one cupful of very thick white sauce. Mold into any desired form, dip into egg and crumbs and fry in deep fat. Adding a bit of chopped green pepper, parsley, olives or onion adds variety and flavor. To make the thick sauce use one cupful of milk and one-third cupful of flour with four tablespoonsful of butter, seasoning to taste.

WHAT DR. CALDWELL LEARNED IN 47 YEARS PRACTICE

A physician watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the system and is not habit forming. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for anybody's system. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly.

Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope, but go to the nearest druggist and get one of the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BB, Monticello, Illinois, for free trial bottle.

MILITARY TELEPHONES

IN USE IN AFGHAN WAR

A recent letter to an English paper says that the telephone was used successfully in war within two years after it was invented. In the Afghan War of 1878 the telephone was used in conjunction with the field telegraphs and the heliograph and proved a valuable means of communication.

During the Great War in France, the Signal Corps of the A. E. F. constructed 1,990 miles of permanent pole line carrying 28,000 miles of wire, put up 3,230 miles of wire on French poles and installed approximately 40,000 miles of combat lines. About 1,600,000 long distance telephone calls were handled by the Signal Corps, together with local telephone calls estimated at 47,000,000.

How To Build Air Plane Models

By CARLOS HALL, Mokena, Ill.

If you are ready to start building flying models this is the best ship to start on. It is necessary in this ship to use balsa wood, bamboo and piano wire, as these materials will make a plane as light as possible.

Start with the motor stick. It should be of balsa 1-16x1-8 inches, and eight inches long. Sand it smooth, then ambroid the thrust bearing to the front end.

This thrust bearing is made of piano wire, with a very small eye in one end and the rest bent into an L shape so that the propeller will turn freely. At the rear is another piece of piano wire bent in a long S. One end is ambroided to the end of the motor stick and the other takes the rubber motor. The thrust bearing and rear hook should be made very light using .020 wire and only high enough so the rubber will clear the motor stick. Next comes the "can" which is a loop of wire at the center of the motor stick to keep the tightly wound rubber from breaking it. To the front of the fuselage, or motor stick, 3-4 of an inch from the end, ambroid an A of bamboo 1-32 in. square for the landing gear. It is just long enough to hold the front 2 1-2 in. above the table. Make a small L of .015 wire and ambroid two of these to the ends of the A for axles. Wheels may be made of flat balsa or cardboard 1 in. in diameter. Put them on the axles and use a drop of ambroid to keep them on.

The wing is next. Use a piece of balsa 1-32x5-16x10 inches, sand smooth and split to make two spars. Place these 2 inches apart and use weights to hold them in place. Bend tips of bamboo 1-32 inches square half round for each end of the wing. There are three ribs of bamboo 1-32 inch square, one in the center and one at each end where the tips are joined on. Ambroid the tips and ribs except the center one in place. Bamboo bends easily when heated over a candle flame. The tips can be bent in one piece and then split apart. Use only the hard outside part. When the ambroid is dry on the wing place it flat on the table, find the center point and score each spar with a knife. Break thru and put a block under one end so that the tip is 2 inches above the table. Weight it down on the table to hold the angle and ambroid the center rib to the grooves. The wing is held to the motor stick by wing clips of .015 piano wire. They are bent in a U shape with part of the wire brought down and bent at right angles so that they may be ambroided to the wing and will slip over the lower part of the motor stick. They should fit tight enough to hold the wing securely. The rear clip should be 1-4 inch longer to give the necessary angle of incidence. Cover the wing with Jap tissue using banana oil to stick it to the frame. Be sure to smooth out all wrinkles.

1-4 inch from the rear of the motor stick on the under side ambroid a piece of bamboo 4 in. long at the center. It should be 1-32x1-16 inch.

The rudder is triangular in shape. Take a piece of bamboo 1-32 in. square and 8 in. long, hold over a flame to bend it to the shape of a right triangle having a base of 1 3-4 in. an altitude of 1 1-2 in. The place where the ends come together forming the right angle is ambroided to the rear end of the motor stick.

Starting at a point 2 in. ahead of the cross rib of bamboo on the under side of the fuselage run a fine thread frame around one end of the cross rib to a point 1 1-4 on the base of the rudder then back around the other side thus forming a four sided figure which is the outline of the elevator. Cover all the tail surfaces on one side only, the elevators on the underside. The wing is covered on the top only.

Your plane is complete now except for rubber motor and propeller. The propeller is carved from a block of balsa 3-8x1-2x5 inches. On the 1-2 in. face draw diagonals crossing at the center point. At the exact center push a pin thru the block to take the propeller shaft. Cut each side away to within 3-64 of the hole for the shaft. The block now has the two ends in fan shape. Holding the block away from you carve away the right hand edge leaving the two blades about 1-16 in. thick. They can now be sanded down to 1-32 and doped, according to a previous article.

Slip a couple of small washers on the propeller shaft which goes thru the hub and is bent over and ambroided down. At the other end a loop is bent to take one end of the motor. Use two strands of 1-8 in. flat airplane rubber for the motor although if the plane is well made it will fly on one strand.

Put the wing on and glide the plane to the floor, it it stalls and settles set the wing back; if it noses over and dives set it ahead. When properly adjusted wind the propeller to the right about 100 turns and launch on an even keel with a slight push. It should fly like a big ship. If the plane refuses to fly maybe you have wound the propeller backwards or it was carved wrong. You won't be satisfied with this one so go to work and build another and make improvements, and remember if there is anything you don't understand, write to Carlos Hall, Mokena, Ill., who will help you solve your problem.

When Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick Entertains

By Mrs. W. B. Combs, Tinley Park

For the many people who have had a curiosity to know just how Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick entertains when her home at 1000 Lake Shore Drive is thrown open to a group of invited guests. Mrs. Wallace B. Combs who attended a musical given by Mrs. McCormick for the "All Illinois Society of Fine Arts" last Wednesday, has volunteered the following information.

As we drove up to the old mansion with its 10 foot spiral iron fence, the massive iron gates were open wide, a groom in livery with gold braid and many buttons stood waiting to assist guests from their motors and to direct the way over the wide velvet carpet strip, the color of which harmonized exactly with the color of the liveries worn by the McCormick door men and butlers. This carpet extended from the curbing to the top of the stairway. As we entered the marble entrance, another groom in maroon broadcloth with gold braid and buttons, knee breeches, white silk stockings and beach oxfords with french buckles, opened the inner door to the magnificent reception room which was of teak wood with a fire place of black and white marble as was also the floor. Red velvet furniture with some chinese teak wood chairs, mirrors every where from ceiling to floors magnified the beauty of the rooms. Another servant, a butler in the customary cutaway coat of black broadcloth ushered us to the broad stairway where a maid in uniform of cours, was in attendance to see that wraps were removed.

As we returned and were ushered into the music room a third man in uniform, led us to seats. One of Mrs. McCormick's traits is exactness and promptness. This she demands of guests, so promptly at 2:30 o'clock, she appeared designating to the musicians that the program would begin.

Mrs. Fredrick Dahlymple, President of the Ill. Art Society, introduced the artists, Miss Mariame Powell Babcock, Soprano, with Mrs. Charles Orchard accompanist gave the opening group of songs,—

The Wind, by Spross.
Serenade, by Strauss.
Still Wie Die Nacht, by Bohm. followed by the Bonconi Trio, Consisting of Violin, Cello and Piano, their first group was,— Tro in G minor,
Moderato Assai.

Allegro Ma Non Agitato, by Smetana. Miss Babcock then sang a group of Spanish songs also a group by Schubert and Massenet.

It goes without saying, the musical program was given in the finest possible manner, as the artists were musicians of the highest rank.

At the close of the program Mrs. McCormick gave a brief welcoming talk. She stated that her home, much too large for her, was consecrated to the advancement of art, music and science, and it was her happiness to assist whenever she could, for the betterment of Civilization.

The dining room was thrown open and the great hand carved table with a cover of rare lace, a huge bowl of Orchids as a center piece, was laden with rich food on sparkling gold and silver dishes and trays. The historic Napoleon's famous silver set of 200 pieces in a carved sideboard extending across the room.

It seemed to require seven of these men in old rose and braid to serve the guests. The style of uniform for Mrs. McCormick's house men dates back to the Louis XIV period as does also some of the exquisite furniture which was old French Cloissonie with black marble or onyx tops to tables. They were upholstered in gold brocade; the walls were hung in green and gold rich brocade; priceless tapestries adorned the arch ways and as panels for side walls. The woodwork was of choicest selected woods with hand carved panels of rare workmanship. The dining room side walls and ceiling were from the Black Forest of Germany richly carved to a depth of 3 to 4 inches. The fireplaces were too magnificent to describe as were the ornaments to be seen everywhere.

Such as miniatures of Napoleon and Josephine executed in diamonds, jade, and priceless marbles, bronzes and rare china. On the walls hung life size paintings of Harold McCormick and Mrs. McCormick when they were in their thirties. A beautiful life sized painting of their son Fowler when he was about six years old adorned the walls. Exquisite roses were used to decorate the house in profusion. They no doubt, were plucked from the McCormick green houses in Villa Turicum in Lake Forest.

Our hostess received her guests in a friendly, cordial but quiet manner. She was dressed in tan from head to foot. No jewelry nor did she have her face powdered and her cheeks rogued—just a plain ordinary looking lady who would never have been taken for the prominent woman she is if one did not know her. The last we saw of her was when she slowly with head and body erect ascended the stairway to privacy above. This was our cue that the affair was all over. We felt as tho the magic carpet had suddenly been snatched from under our feet and we were back again to earth all too soon.

The best way to improve established lawns is to feed them. More grass seed will be wasted unless there is abundant plant food present.

ORLAND PARK

Arthur Ludwig, aged 39 years, a World War veteran, passed away the forepart of last week in a government hospital near Chicago. He had been a patient at the Speedway hospital for sometime.

Funeral services were held last Thursday afternoon at the Orland Park M. E. church. Rev. Mr. Joe-hum, pastor of the German M. E. church of Tinley Park and Rev. Paul Sanders officiated. The Lemont Legion Post of which the deceased was a member, also attended the funeral and had charge of the burial rites in a cemetery near Lemont.

The Orland Park P. T. A., has started a library for the local public school and has been assisted by the citizens of the village who have donated books from their private libraries.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Schussler visited in Chicago Wednesday.

P. E. Steffen has been awarded the painting job to paint the exterior of the Southmoor Country Club house in Palos. He will start work at once.

Rumor has it that the state is going to take over the construction of the Southwest Highway thru Cook County parallel the Wabash right of way to St. Louis. If this proves true it will mean that a number of business places in Orland Park will have to be purchased as they would be on the proposed right of way.

Work on the remodelling of the interior of the J. F. Schmadeke store is progressing nicely and the new arrangement of the post office will be completed in another week.

The Wabash railroad is dredging out the ditches along the right of way from Marley to Worth in order to drain off the big sloughs on both sides of the right of way. The water will be drained into a drainage canal near Worth. The dredging machine is now at work near Marley.

Found in Tobacco Leaves

Tobacco leaves when submitted to chemical analysis yield nicotine, which is its most characteristic constituent; albumin, a gluten-like substance; gum resin, malic and citric acids, and a large amount of inorganic constituents, 100 parts of the dry leaf yielding from about 10 to 27 per cent of ash, in which potash, lime and silica preponderate.

INFANT'S COAT AND CAP

Baby's things are such fun to make for one's own as well as for friends' babies. Such dainty materials may be used, and the wee garments are easy to make. This coat and cap may be made up in fine flannel for real serviceable use, or in quilted silk, or in heavy crepe de Chine lined with eider-down. The neck of the coat may be finished with either a cape or a small collar. The square yoke is a distinctive feature. If a dainty edging of lace is put on the turned back band on the cap, it is very effective and pretty.

Mrs. Kate Cooper who has been spending the winter in St. Petersburg, Florida, returned home last Saturday. She enjoyed her stay very much and says Florida certainly has the balmy climate. When she left here in January snow and ice covered the ground while in Florida the flowers were in bloom nearly all the winter thru.

Mrs. Julius Hirsch who also went to Florida is not expected back until May.

Mrs. Nicholas Lauffer is ill and confined to bed.

Sunbeam camp 6054 R. N. of A., held their regular meeting Tuesday evening at Neighbor Pflegers. The neighbors were dressed in "Ye Ole Tyme" clothes, which created much amusement. After the business meeting a mock wedding took place by members of the camp.

Bunco was played and refreshments were served. The next regular meeting will be held Tuesday evening, May 7th, 1929.

Washes, Carries Coal, Woman Gains 18 Pounds

"I wash, iron and carry coal and don't get tired since taking Vinol. Also, I have gained 18 pounds."—Mrs. S. Cortese.

Vinol is a delicious compound of cod liver peptone, iron, etc. Nervous, easily tired, anemic people are surprised how Vinol gives new pep, sound sleep and a BIG appetite. The very FIRST bottle often adds several pounds weight to thin children or adults. Tastes delicious.

Slaves Were Shaved

A clean-shaven face in the East was originally a sign of servitude. Old pictures show kings and conquerors heavily bearded and with long hair, while their slaves and captives are clean-shaven and close-cropped. The Greeks and the Romans later discarded "face fungus," as it gave their enemies a hand-hold in the close fighting, which was, of course, the rule in those days.

KING'S RECOVERY ATTRIBUTED TO AMERICAN SCIENTISTS

Had it not been for the discovery of the Carrel-Dakin solution, King George might not have been alive today. Remarkable as the Carrel-Dakin solution is, its use was restricted to hospitals and the medical profession, until it was discovered it could be stabilized and concentrated. In this form, it is known as zonite, with its high germicidal powers, should be used in the battle against disease germs. (Herbert Photos, New York City.)

Constipation Gone. Has Roses in Her Cheeks Now

"About seven years ago, I was dying slowly of constipation. My system was full of poison, which not only dulled my senses, but my complexion was muddy, eyes blurred, my stomach was ruined, and I was continually catching cold. I did not have any life or energy."

"After reading one of your ads, I bought several bottles of Milks Emulsion, and began improving at once. Improvement was so marked that everyone noticed it, and spoke of how it cleared my skin, made my eyes much brighter, and put roses in my cheeks. In fact, I was an entirely different person. I took altogether 15 large bottles of Milks Emulsion, and looked wonderful and felt the same way. It absolutely made me over. It adds more to your looks than anything I have ever heard of. After I had taken the first 8 bottles, people began to notice the improvement in my skin and my eyes being brighter."

"Every woman should know of it. I have never had a cold since I took Milks Emulsion, no stomach trouble or constipation. I think it is a God, send to humanity."

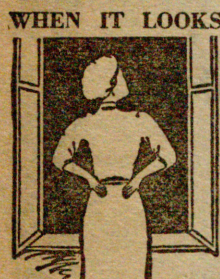

"A nephew of mine was almost dead of stomach trouble. I started him on Milks Emulsion and while he has only taken 4 bottles, he can eat nearly anything, and is beginning to feel fine."

"You will always find me a Milks Emulsion booster." MRS. REBECCA CAMPBELL, R. R. 1, Dyersburg, Tenn.

WHEN IT LOOKS DARK to any weak, nervous or ailing woman, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription comes to her aid. Women in every walk of life today say Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a reliable medicine. It is made from roots and herbs, sold by druggists, in both fluid and tablets.

Mrs. Myrtle Paige, 713 Acorn St., Rockford, Ill., said: "Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was so beneficial to me as a tonic and nerve that I recommend it to any woman who is weak, nervous and rundown. At one time I suffered from bearing pains and backaches, was very nervous and so weak I could scarcely be on my feet. A friend advised me to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it built up my whole nervous system, made me so well and strong that I felt like a new woman."

Are You Ready

When your Children Cry for It

Baby has little upsets at times. All your care cannot prevent them. But you can be prepared. Then you can do what any experienced nurse would do—what most physicians would tell you to do—give a few drops of plain Castoria. No sooner done than Baby is soothed; relief is just a matter of moments. Yet you have eased your child without use of a single doubtful drug; Castoria is vegetable. So it's safe to use as often as an infant has any little pain you cannot pat away. And it's always ready for the crueler pangs of colic, or constipation or diarrhea; effective, too, for older children. Twenty-five million bottles were bought last year.

ATTRACTIVE MILLINERY SETS; DARK AND LIGHT GO TOGETHER

TO BE chic, one's hat must match something else about one's costume—either the scarf or pocket-book, belt or blouse. The very latest is for hat and shoes to be made of the same print. This vogue for millinery sets is furnishing the smart world with a subject of thrilling interest.

While most of them do, yet not all millinery sets feature gay print fabric in their fashioning. There's the delightful little hat-and-pocketbook ensemble shown at the top of this group. This stunning outfit is entirely of straw interwoven in a clever plaid design.

Very ingenious women who know how to embroider are doing a most clever thing. They are buying an exotic straw hat, a linen-like smooth straw purse and a pair of new straw or fiber shoes which are all easily available if one will look about a bit. Nimble fingers embroider these with multi-colored raffia, using the same decorative motif throughout, thus assembling the various articles into as clever a sports set as fancy may picture.

Frequently the matchmaking is accomplished with flowers. Milliners are designing adorable springtime sets, applying tiny flat flower petals on coats promised for the days to follow. Certain it is that the jacket is a very smart item on fashion's list.

Paris says either the very light frock with the darker coat or the light coat with a contrasting dark frock. The rule of contrast color applies to costumes for every hour of the day, whether they be of sports character or dressier mien. In creating the youthful sports costume in the picture Jane Regny observes the law of contrast to a nicety, as prescribed for the season's costumes. This very informal sports jacket is of dark rayon and wool basket woven fabric, its neutral color is relieved with glints of inter-worked peach-colored threads, which tunes it to the frock which it tops of clear peach-colored all-rayon crepe. The hat is peach color, too.

All along the line one is reminded of the importance of color contrast for the jacket whether it actually belongs to the ensemble or whether it be classified as a separate proposition.

Dark Jacket With Light Frock.

both hat and scarf. Ambitious modistes also are contriving cunning ribbon or malines neck ruches with little bouquets inset here and there, the flowers duplicating those which trim the hat.

Of the three sports millinery sets in the picture which use print fabric in their making, the one to the left matches a plaid silk kerchief with an inset forming the crown of its accompanying hat.

Polka dot provides the print theme for the brimmed hat to the right and its graceful matching scarf. Especial interest is attached to this hat because of its widened brim. Paris says brims are coming in again.

The last hat-and-scarf combination features black and white with a beige tone added. Considerable emphasis is being placed on black-and-white by stylists not only in matter of millinery but for the costume entire.

Jackets to the right of us, jackets to the left of us, with an endless procession of jackets and separate

Colorful coats with white frocks are very popular. Not only knitted effects are popular, but jackets of cloth, silk, rayon mixtures, cotton, especially velveteen, express up-to-the-minute chic. Double-breasted flannel jackets, red with white or navy topping white, also blazer striped flannel cardigans are considered a necessary accessory to the sleeveless sports frock and add to its beauty.

In dressy modes designers are putting the rule of contrast for jacket and frock into practice with fascinating results. The loveliest imaginable ensembles—and rumor has it that in point of popularity they will be in the lead—employ flowery, filmy voiles or chiffons for the frocks, using for the coat transparent velvets in brilliant shades. Crepe coats, too, are in favor but there is that something about the lustrous, colorful thin velvets which radiates a beauty incomparable to that of almost every fabric.

Cotton in Natural Colors

Scientists are experimenting in crossing natural-colored cotton to produce any hue desired. Cotton grown in Egypt has a brownish tint, that from India a gray, that from Peru a reddish shade and that from China is yellow. The plants breed true to type and the colors are fixed and do not change with variations in soil or climate, so that it may be possible to eliminate dyeing.

NICE WORDS WON'T DYE a dress or coat...

Neither pretty pictures nor colorful adjectives will dye a dress or coat. It takes real dyes to do the work; dyes made from true anilines.

Next time you have dyeing to do, try Diamond Dyes. See how easy it is to use them. Then compare the results. Your dealer will refund your money if you don't agree they are better dyes.

You get none of that re-dyed look from Diamond Dyes; no streaking or spotting. Just fresh, crisp, bright new color. And watch the way they keep their brilliance through wear and washing. They are better dyes because they contain plenty of real anilines—from three to five times more than other dyes.

The white package of Diamond Dyes is the original "all-purpose" dye for any and every kind of material. It will dye or tint silk, wool, cotton, linen, rayon or any mixture of materials. The blue package is a special dye, for silk or wool only. With it you can dye your valuable articles of silk or wool with results equal to the finest professional work. When you buy—remember this. The blue package dyes silk or wool only. The white package will dye every kind of goods, including silk and wool. Your dealer has both packages.

There came a flare of light through the loopholes that lit up her pale face vividly, and then a tremendous crash and the cabin seemed to rock under the vibrations. Afraid it was too good to be true, I stepped to the small window, set high under the eaves, and looked up to the heavens. I could have shouted aloud in joy as I beheld the mighty wall of black and slate towering almost to the zenith with its lead-colored draperies dragging on the horizon.

While we had talked and watched for danger the storm had swept down the river and was upon us. The opening grew dusky and it would have been an easy task for the savages to have crawled close in the uncertain light. Again the Thunder-god hurled a spear at the water-serpent and the noise of the contest transcended all earth sounds. A strange moaning ran through the forest-crown and lofty tops bowed and swayed although as yet there was no air moving in the opening.

"I'm thinking it's going to rain," remarked the girl in a faint voice. "Thank God, yes! Stay back there to see they try no tricks," I cautioned as she came toward me.

The lightning ripped across the face of the clouds, and the girl gave a little squeal. I went to her to learn what was the matter.

"Not Injuns," she whispered. "I'm thinking I'm scared of these sort of storms."

It seemed impossible that one who had shown such absolute control of nerves could be frightened by a flash of lightning and the rumble of thunder. And yet she was clinging to me like a child, striving to conquer herself, yet keeping her face pressed against my fringed sleeve so as not to see the glare of the bolts. I endeavored to soothe away her fears by telling her the storm was our best friend; that it would make the cabin fire-proof, that it would compel the Indians to keep their guns covered and their bow-strings protected from the rain. But as I talked I could feel her wince convulsively each time the god renewed the ancient strife.

With a deafening roar the rain came battering against the cabin. It was impossible to distinguish an object fifty feet from the door. Now was the time for the enemy to attack and cut their way into us and finish us with their belt weapons. Raising my voice above the terrific drumming of the rain, I told the girl:

"We'll go. The rain will wash out our trail. Find something to wrap around the rifles."

She found some oiled skins and we wrapped them about our rifles. I opened the door. The water was falling in torrents and the wind was blowing with great velocity. Closing the door, we were plastered against the walls for a moment by the force of the wind. I sought to shelter her by holding her close to my side; and leaning against the storm, we made for the woods. We could not talk and we scarcely could see because of the rain filling our faces. We both realized that such a downpour could not last long. Our progress was slow, but finally I was waist-deep in some cherry bushes. We fought through these and came to dripping trees and entered among them.

The uproar of the storm suddenly lessened now that we were walking on ancient forest mold and were sheltered from the wind. Rivulets of water ran under our feet and there was no need to hide our trail until we were two miles in the woods. We were as wet as two river-rats.

It became strangely quiet in the dripping woods and we no longer shouted to make ourselves heard. How the storm was raging outside we could only guess. I feared it was abating.

"They'll lose some time, mister, in making sure we're not in the cabin," the girl philosophically remarked. "And it's getting so dark they can't find our tracks even if we do leave some."

"We must find a place under a rock where we can make a fire and you can dry out."

She laughed at me, and her voice was most musical because it was natural.

"Hard work to drown a witch," she said. "I've fared hard before this and didn't mind it."

I remembered those days when the House of the Open Hand entertained and when beauty must be gently wrapped in water-proof coverings and sent home in coaches. This wild young creature at my side had done a man's work and more. She was made up of the outdoors.

It grew very dark, and without stars to guide us we would have wandered blindly if not for a little rain that we stumbled upon and which I remembered flowed parallel to Turtle creek. We took to the water, knee-deep because of the rain, and worked our way upstream by clutching at the overhanging boughs. We finally left the stream where a windfall had smothered it. By the sense of touch alone I found a spot clear of brush and undergrowth and informed my companion we must wait for daylight before proceeding. I could find no dry fuel, even had I dared to build a fire.

"We have water, but no fire nor food," I told her.

"You're wrong, mister, about food. I fetched this along," she answered; and her hands found mine with a small package wrapped in deerskin.

It was some of Frazier's smoked meat which she had had the forethought to bring along. It was tough, but it was food, and we chewed it vigorously and felt the better for having eaten it.

"Lenn against me," I commanded. "It'll be dreary waiting."

"Not so dreary as when we was in the cabin, waiting," she replied. And her head rested against my shoulder and very soon I rejoiced to find she was asleep.

When she was entirely oblivious to our discomforts, I shifted her into my lap, and thus we passed the night; she sleeping the sleep of utter exhaustion and I afraid to move lest I disturb her. Near morning I dozed off and was aroused by her hand pressing lightly on my shoulder. I came to my feet and rubbed my legs and arms to drive out the kinks and cramps. She whispered for me to make no noise, and I noted she had removed the coverings from the guns.

"What is it?" I murmured, a terrible rage sweeping over me as I glared about to discover the relentless foe.

She shook her head and said:

"I thought I heard something moving toward us." Footsteps would fall softly on the wet ground, and, after listening without hearing anything, I told her:

"Some animal got the scent of us and turned tail."

Her small hand gripped my arm for silence. Men were coming. I heard a voice say something in the Delaware tongue. She pulled her Highland pistol from her blouse and noiselessly removed its wrapping. Then her hand found mine and gave it a convulsive squeeze, and her soft voice was saying:

"Mister, you've been powerful good to me. We've made a good fight for it. It won't be awful hard this way. Don't let 'em catch you alive. If I go first, I'll be waiting for you."

Sample of Tact That Made Blaine Famous

One year James G. Blaine visited Homburg and the prince of Wales at once invited him to luncheon. Blaine's retort to a question delighted every American in the place. One of the guests was the then duke of Manchester, an old man and a great tory. When the duke grasped that Blaine was a leading American and had been a candidate for the Presidency of the United States all his old toryism was aroused and he was back in the days of George III. To the horror of the prince the duke said to Mr. Blaine: "The most outrageous thing in all history was your rebellion and separation from the best government on earth." He said much more before the prince could stop him.

Blaine, with that grace and tact for which he was so famous, smilingly said: "Well, your grace, if George III had had the sense, tact and winning

I gently pushed her behind me and she sank at the foot of a tree. I drew my ax and knife and placed them beside me as I sank to one knee and gathered up the two rifles. Over my shoulder I whispered:

"Don't use the pistol on any Indian. Remember!"

"We must go faster," said a voice in Delaware, only I knew it was a white man speaking. "They'll follow us very fast."

I shivered with a thrill of hope, but dared not give any encouragement to the girl. I glanced back at her. Her face showed none of the anger I had witnessed at the Witches' Head when she was menaced by the mob. It was placid of expression, and she met my gaze with a little smile of encouragement. We could hear them making their way along the windfall. Suddenly they burst into view: two Indians and a white man. One of the Indians was carrying a fresh scalp fastened to the end of a short rod.

I reached back and snatched the pistol from the girl's hand and cried out:

"If that be Christopher Gist, we are friends."

The three vanished as if by magic. After a few moments the white man replied:

"I am Gist. Who are you? Speak sharp. My Indians are nervous."

"Black Brond, returning from a scout to Duquesne. I have a young friend with me." In Delaware I added, "Tell your friends we are your friends, and that there is a large band of Pontiac's men chasing us."

CHAPTER IX

The Fatal Errand

This meeting with Gist and his two Indians was most pleasing to us, although the Delawares did not care enough for our company to slacken their pace. They ranged ahead while Gist traveled with us. He gave us much news. On July third the Indians had refused to go on a scout, but on the following day two had been induced to accompany him. The three of them had advanced to within half a mile of the fort and had been deterred from approaching closer because of the excitement occasioned by the escape of the girl, the Onondaga and myself. They did not know what had happened, but with so much yelling and howling and running into the woods the Delawares had taken fright and declared the entire red force was starting to attack the army. Two Indians had sighted Gist and had chased him for some distance. The Delawares surprised and scalped the Frenchman the Dinwold girl had stumbled upon among the bramble bushes.

Gist said he and his companions had attempted to follow Turtle creek to its head, where they had expected to find the army, but had been turned back by a large band of savages coming down the creek. They had taken refuge in a windfall and had remained in hiding through the violent storm. This delay permitted the girl and me to get in advance of them. In scouting to the neighborhood of the fort they had found the fords open and without any signs of an ambuscade being prepared. Nor had they discovered any trace of the enemy's savages being outside the immediate vicinity of the fort until the night of our escape.

When Gist set out from the army camp, Braddock was about to march to Thickety run, a small branch of Sewickley creek. Time had been lost at Jacobs' creek in waiting for Colonel Dunbar's provision train to come up. Many of St. Clair's road-builders were on the sick list, and quite a number of them had died. The wagon horses were in miserable condition. Colonel Washington was too ill to travel and had not rejoined the army up to July fourth.

"You have nothing but a talk in your bag," I remarked.

"We have one French scalp," he grimly replied. "And since June twenty-fifth Braddock has been paying five pounds apiece for scalps. But none of our scouts are getting rich on the bounties. If we could only get ahead faster, and reach the fort before all our soldiers are dead, or too sick to fight, we'd win just by showing ourselves. Mr. William Shirley, the general's secretary, is very much disgusted and discouraged at the way things are being managed. He says he doubts our success. But talk like that is all foolishness, of course. If we can only hold out till we reach Duquesne, we'll whip the French easy enough."

qualities of his great-grandson, our host, it is just possible that we might now be a self-governing colony in the British empire."

The answer relieved the situation and immensely pleased the host. From "My Memories of Eighty Years," by Chauncey M. Depew.

Lesson for April 7

THE MINISTRY OF ISAIAH

LESSON TEXT—Isaiah 6:1-13; 20:1, 2; 38:1-5.

GOLDEN TEXT—Then said I, here am I, send me.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Being God's Helper.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Being God's Helper.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Finding a Life Work.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Obedient to the Heavenly Vision.

I. Isaiah's Call (Isa. 6:1-13).

1. Isaiah's vision of the Lord (vv. 1-4).

(1) He saw the Lord on His throne (v. 1). The supreme need of a servant of God is to have a vision of Him.

(2) He saw the seraphim above (vv. 2, 3). Their position indicated that they were in readiness to do His bidding. The six wings showed their ability to execute the divine will. One pair veiled the head from the divine glory, one veiled the feet which had been soiled in contact with the world, while the third was held in readiness to depart on the divine errand. Their continued cry was, "Holy, holy, holy."

(3) He saw manifestations of majesty (v. 4). As the seraphim cried, the very door posts moved and the temple was filled with smoke. Smoke symbolizes the divine presence in anger (Exod. 19:9; 29:18). This indicated that the selfishness, idolatry and wickedness of Israel had provoked God's wrath.

2. Isaiah's conviction of sin (v. 6).

When he saw the vision of the Holy God, he was smitten with a sense of sin. The reason men think well of themselves is that they have never seen God. Face to face with the Lord, Isaiah saw himself as wholly vile.

3. Isaiah cleansed from sin (vv. 6, 7).

Having been convicted of sin and made confession, a burning coal sent from the altar purged away his guilt.

4. Isaiah's call (v. 8).

His call from God did not come until after his cleansing. The purged soul is ready for the Lord's service.

5. Isaiah's dedication (v. 8).

As soon as he was cleansed he responded to the call for service. He did not inquire as to the issue, but freely gave himself to that service.

6. Isaiah's commission (vv. 9-13).

Because of the unpromising outlook, Isaiah shrank from his responsibility. The Lord assured him that the people's blindness and sin would not endure forever. They would continue in sin, be taken into captivity, and the land left desolate. Their life, however, would be as the oak which sheds its leaves and is for a time apparently lifeless, but still retains its substance.

II. Isaiah's Prophecy Concerning Assyria and Egypt (Isa. 20:1-6).

The increasing power of Assyria alarmed the Jews who were inclined to turn to Egypt and Ethiopia for help. Isaiah severely rebuked them for turning away from God to Egypt (31:1-6).

1. The prophet's action (vv. 1, 2).

He removed his outer garments and walked about Jerusalem as a beggar in order to make a deep impression upon the people.

2. The significance of the sign (vv. 3-5).

For three years he went about in the dress of a beggar. As he had wandered about naked and barefoot, so would Egypt be led away in shame by the Assyrians.

3. The warning (v. 6).

The people are made to say, "Such is our expectation, whither we flee for help to be delivered from the king of Assyria: how shall we escape?"

III. Isaiah's Message to Hezekiah (Isa. 38:1-8).

Hezekiah had inclined somewhat toward seeking help from Egypt.

1. Hezekiah's sickness (v. 1).

For this disloyalty God sent sickness as a means of chastisement.

2. Isaiah's first message (v. 1).

"Set thine house in order for thou shalt die and not live." This doubtless is to be understood as a prophetic warning rather than a positive prediction.

3. Hezekiah's prayer (vv. 2, 3).

He pleaded with God for consideration on the basis of his faithfulness.

4. Isaiah's second message (v. 4-6).

God sent Isaiah to tell Hezekiah that his prayer had been heard, his life would be prolonged by fifteen years, and that Jerusalem would be delivered out of the hand of the king of Assyria.

5. The sign given (vv. 7, 8).

The sign was the going back of the shadow of the sundial ten degrees.

Overcoming Injury

MOKENA M. E. CHURCH NOTES

Harold C. Sandall, Pastor

Church School 10:30 a. m.

Evening Worship Service 7 p. m.

The reception held as a farewell to the Rev. Glen T. Beaty and his wife and for the incoming pastor, the Rev. Harold C. Sandall, on last Thursday evening was well attended and was a most joyous affair.

A splendid brief case was presented to the retiring pastor by the Sunday school and a purse of money amounting to over sixty dollars was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Beaty from a large number of friends. These gifts were an utter surprise to the couple and it required no little skill in trying to keep the matter secret. Mr. and Mrs. Beaty wish to thank all who had a part in these gifts as well as those other friends who gave them individual tokens and many words of kindness. Mr. Sandall was given a splendid opportunity to become acquainted and both he and the people seemed to use the opportunity to the fullest. A royal welcome was given to the new pastor.

Rev. and Mrs. Beaty, Rev. Sandall spent Friday and Saturday in trying to bring a knowledge of where people lived to Rev. Sandall and to visit those homes of our constituency and friends who had been prevented for any reason in attending the reception. A cordial welcome was received at every place visited. It is only regretted that we could not have stretched the time to make room for more calls. As it was, about 45 calls were made.

The early Easter morning service at 7:30 a. m. was one of the finest held in Mokena recently. In spite of the early rain, there was a large congregation; the spirit was one of happiness and joyfulness as the Easter spirit ought to be. The Rev. Mr. Beaty preached his farewell sermon. There was a reception of members and baptismal service. The church reports ten new members and four baptisms for Easter Day. We welcome them with our warmest fellowship. At the close of the service, Rev. Mr. Beaty passed the pastoral office to his friend, the Rev. Sandall in a brief ritual service which included the presentation of two beautiful pulpits covers made by a worker in the church—one to the church, and one to Rev. Sandall as his emblem of the pastorate.

Those received in church membership are: Elmer Cooper, Mrs. W. D. Roberts, Viola Hostert, Edith Hurley, Mrs. John Balaz, Inez Roberts, Virginia Wallace, Dolly Hensel, Mrs. Arthur Hall, Celia Cooper.

Rev. and Mrs. Beaty have closed a pastorate of three and one half years in Mokena. They will remain in Evanston until June and will then leave for Oklahoma or some other Southwestern state, where they expect to make their home in their life work of the ministry. Their reason for leaving Mokena before June is that they wish to study some of the leading churches of Chicago and vicinity, before leaving.

MARK HOTCHKIN PASSES ON

The sudden and unexpected death of Mark Hotchkin, Sr., which occurred on the morning of March 28, came as a great shock to the community causing a great feeling of sadness thruout the entire neighborhood.

Mr. Hotchkin had apparently been feeling quite well of late but had been afflicted during the winter with a severe attack of influenza from which he never completely recovered, leaving him still weak and in a condition to be easily affected.

Mr. Hotchkin was born on the old Hotchkin homestead Nov. 15, 1863 and lived here during all the years of his life until death called him away at the age of 66 years.

On December 26, 1900 he was united in marriage to Mary Ellen Harrington of Chicago. Unto this union five children were born, four of whom are living; an infant daughter, Ellen having preceded him in death. He always was a very kind and unselfish husband and father, ever sacrificing his own needs that his loved ones around him should have the best.

He was held in high esteem by all who knew him and will be greatly missed by immediate neighbors and friends as well as by his family. He is survived by his loving wife, his three sons, Mark of Chicago, Wm. and John who are at home, his daughter Mrs. Clarence Zumallen, one grand daughter, one sister, Marian of Chicago, one brother Dr. Wm. Hotchkin of Blue Island.

The funeral services were held Monday from St. Mary's church of Mokena. Father Anthony Wagner singing requiem high mass. His body was laid to rest in the adjoining cemetery.

Dearest father how we miss you, In our paths of life each day, And we cannot comprehend it That you really went away.

But your old arm chair is vacant And your face we do not see; Different is the entire household Changed from what it used to be.

Henceforth Easter brings us sadness Snow white lilies, garlands gay, Will be ever a reminder Of the time you went away.

And each day how we will miss you, Will forever give us comfort, 'Till we meet again above.

CARD OF THANKS

We hereby wish to express our thanks to all those who so kindly extended their sympathy, and to the telephone operators who so faithfully helped us put thru our calls, and to those who helped us in this time of need and sorrow.

MRS. MARK HOTCHKIN AND SONS.

Chas. Mau is having the old Carl
